A Painting Demo with emphasis on Color, Creativity and Motivation!

By Greg Chapleski, Programs Committee

There is an inner circle of watercolor artists that can take their creativity and skills to a level that makes you sit up, take notice and, more importantly, inspire you to want to do it yourself. Such is the case for the artist/presenter at our May membership meeting. You will watch with wonder as you see paint and brushes do their own thing in the hands of a master. He motivates as he demonstrates.

Tom Jones, a resident of central Florida, absolutely loves what he does with watercolors – the proof is an explosion of brilliant color with a touch of realism that is expressed outside the box of exactness. His painting style allows the viewer to use one's own imagination to fill in the blanks and enjoy the view.

Tom begins by moving his brush back and forth several times, between paint, water and pallet – it reminds one of a conductor about to direct a symphony. Then he quickly lays down a few short sweeps of paint on the paper. At first they look too random to be meaningful. Then back to his pallet for a color variation and more brush strokes.

Watching, you may be tempted to ask yourself, "What's he doing that for?" Fear not... it's all part of his plan.

Stroke by stroke, color by color, shape by shape the "magic" of Tom's movements begin to reveal something special is happening. With a hint of a smile somehow you get the sense that he knew what was going to be there from the beginning. "Wow, this guy is good..." comes to mind.

Tom Jones is not only a very capable artist - he is a teacher that both artist and student can identify with, at whatever level they are at. He can clearly explain a technique with both word and action. After watching him you will be motivated to adopt some of his skills and use them on your own artistic creations. And, that's another part of the learning process.

Tom does 3 and 4-day workshops across the country and has written books, made DVDs as well as offering free mini-lessons on his own website (tomjonesartist.com) and on several websites like Jerry's Artarama and YouTube. He even has a line of custom-designed brushes that he offers and uses that help to achieve the results he demonstrates.

Mark your calendar and plan to attend this adventure in color, creativity and motivation at 7pm on Tuesday, May 20th at the First Plymouth Congregational Church (SW corner of Colorado Blvd. & Hampden). Bring a friend and expect an artistically rewarding evening. You won't be disappointed.

Message from the President

Marcio Correa, CWS President

Springtime, Change and Renewal at the CWS

Everyone who knows me knows how enthusiastically I welcome Spring and its expanded opportunities for outdoor painting. This time I am also excited about a host of important changes for the Colorado Watercolor Society.

First, there is the election of the new Board members and a change in administration. Voting happens in May, and in June new board members take office, including Greg Chapleski as new President. Greg is very intelligent, communicative, active, and also very cooperative and generous; his passion is contagious and he will certainly make the CWS an even more vibrant and dynamic organization.

The Nominating Committee has appointed Tim Brenner, our current Parliamentarian, for the President Elect position. Many members know Tim as the chair of our 2013 Members Show and as the leader (along with Dave Wicks) to the approval of our updated bylaws. They will attest to his organization, his skill as a listener, his respectful and sensible manners, his intelligence and diplomacy. Tim has a background in business and management, and it also helps that he has pretty much memorized our policies and bylaws by now... This knowledge will serve him well in the new role.

The ballot is complete with the proposed renewal of Terrey Harrod as workshop official, confirmation of Kathy Cranmer as membership official, and a newcomer to the board, Art Beck, replacing Tim as Parliamentarian--all excellent choices. Two years ago, I was very pleased to recommend Greg for the presidency, and now am fully supportive of Tim Brenner as our next nominee for the post. The CWS looks forward to bright years under their guidance.

Members Show Becomes a Non-Juried Exhibition Again

Change is also coming to the CWS Members Show: This will be a non-juried exhibition. Members can submit a first painting which will automatically be hung in the show, and a second painting to be considered if there is still enough space left. Instead of a juror of selection, there will be only a judge of awards—renowned Ft. Collins artist Bob Coonts.

By removing jurying and simplifying the entry process, we hope to make the show more inclusive, as it used to be, with an equal opportunity to all members, regardless of their skill level or experience with show submission. The downside of a non-juried show is that this year's exhibit will no longer count towards signature membership.

Another change is the location. The Members' Show will take place in Ft Collins. It has been our objective to reach out to members outside the metro area, who have less opportunity to attend our meetings and events (about 20% of our members reside in Northern Colorado). It will also be a chance to showcase the CWS and our members' work and talent to a new community, and Ft Collins has offered a nice venue for the event. The details are available in the prospectus and entry form at the end of the Collage.
